

what is visual communications design?
the role of visual communications in global design

Visual communications today: brands

Visual communications is primarily the communication of a message about a person, an organisation, a company, an activity or a product. Collectively these different forms of identity are called brands.